Methodology	The bear rescue volunteering program conducted by our Eco Club involved recruiting volunteers and providing an orientation on wildlife conservation and bear care. Participants engaged in activities at the rescue center, where they observed how the bears eat, play, and interact with their environment. Educational workshops were held to enhance understanding of bear biology. Overall, this initiative fostered a strong sense of community engagement and commitment to wildlife conservation among participants.
Outcome of activity	The bear rescue volunteering program successfully raised awareness about wildlife conservation and engaged participants in observing and learning about bear behavior. It strengthened community involvement and fostered a commitment to protecting wildlife among volunteers.
